GRAN FUTURES WEAKER AFTER EARLY ADVANCES.

THE TRADING SENTIMENT IS BEARISH.

Lack of Professional or Outside Demand Causes Active Options to Sag.

There was some early buying of wheat, but the support was not sufficient to keep up steam and the market sagged off own weight in the last hour. Though temperatures were low in a considerable portion of the winter belt, general conditions were favorable, and there was not enough professional or outside interest to justify anything like a buying movement. There was little trading of the cash market, and nothing was done.

Cotton also closed on the docket. The volume of trading was very small and speculative sentiment was mildly bearish.
